My dear Father,

Now that the fighting seems to be over except the matter of occupying Germany for several years: I have been thinking about just what was my duty. I don't like to leave here until every thing is settled and peace terms signed, which may be 4 or 5 months longer. Still I don't like to miss the good chances that will be coming up at home.

Mather, wrote me of the success you were having on the camp hunt. Especially about getting the "old barhide".

I am secretary of the school here and the Colonel I serve under and with is a very fine man. Very business like and often he makes me think of you, Dad. He is an old member of the regular army.
He has advised me to join the regular army, and said that he would get me in the regular army if I wanted it. I declined it as it is not the best life in the world for it is a busy man's life and it gives a man very little chance to use his own initiative and ability and even more it is not an independent life.

I would like to have a letter from you when ever you can write me.
I am getting along very fine.

Love to Mother, Sister and all.

Your devoted son
Boyer
